Yellowknife Field Busy Mine Centre
YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T.—There are more potential gold mine producers around Yellowknife than anywhere else in Canada, believe the visitors, Irving H. Picard, Canadian mining executive and financier.

After a 10-day tour of inspection of Yellowknife properties he reported that the mine at Negus is to be increased next year and Consolidated Shelters are going back into production at the mine in the very near future. His tour included the river and the booming Salima area, where diamond drilling has been producing interesting results.

Devaluation of the U.S. dollar, Mr. Picard believes, should have less effect on Yellowknife than any other camp in Canada, because the mine in Yellowknife has been of exceptionally high grade. Recovery at Negus, for instance, is $2 per ton whereas in the Salima run is often around $4 to $5.

Boon Conditions
Yellowknife is like a lucky kid growing out of his pants says Mr. Picard. Offices and eating places have sprung up crazy-quilt fashion, some operating in the back rooms of others. So far there are two banks, two newspapers, two stock brokers to handle the investments of the miners in Yellowknife properties, two churches and "too few girls," Mr. Picard stated.

Mr. Picard inspected the new Yellowknife townsite, which has been laid out some distance from the present location on a rocky hill. There will be no unsightly ramshackle temporary buildings in the new town, he said. The new Yellowknife will be for business and living on a permanent basis. Trucks, cranes and steam shovels are already at work leveling the ground and laying out a road between the present site and the new town. Meanwhile the Hudson's Bay Company has erected a new general store and warehouse near the docks, plus a recreation hall for the company's employees.

Paraguay Presidency Saved Through Slick Manoeuvring

BUENOS AIRES, (ONA)—The impatience and inexperience of the president of Paraguay, succeeded in convincing the centrist progressive Partido Colorado and the revolutionary Movimiento Federalista, considered leftist by some and reactionary by others, that they should give the government under his presidency.

This halfway solution prevents a clear-cut settlement of the situation, observers assert. They stress that freedom of the press, total political amnesty reorganization of the judicial system and, immediately, the Constituent assembly. Freedom of the press has been promised but has not been realized yet. Moreover, observers underline the fact that the members of the Colorado and Federalista groups hate one another so much that it may well be the able political manipulator, Gen. Higinio Morinigo, who claimed he was revised by a rash storm and accused from a full neral py in 1909.

The country's ruling dismissed the appeal of Ramon Bilibashi, who said she was the "widow" of the claimant. She asserted her husband died at Darjeeling in 1909 and was cremated.

The appeal was against a majority decision of the high court of Calcutta granting title of the estates yielding £100,000 ($1,000,000) a year to the man who claimed to be Ramendra Narayan Roy.

Canadians' Tribute Paid at Hong Kong

See 400 Teachers Short in Alberta
TORONTO, (CP)—With only one month left of summer holidays, the need for teachers in Alberta is becoming more acute than ever. A Canadian Press survey Wednesday revealed that in many areas, particularly in the prairie provinces, the shortage of teachers will be even more acute this fall than it was a year ago.

Predicting 400 vacancies in Alberta public schools next September, education department officials have prepared to post the teachers in needy communities. Without teachers will be enrolled for correspondence courses and will take daily lessons under the direction of a "correspondence supervisor."

In Manitoba the shortage of 275 fully-qualified teachers will be made up of "permitted" high school graduates without training and also some who have taken a six weeks' summer course.

In Victoria Dr. C. B. Conway, of the teachers summer school, said the shortage in British Columbia would be worse than at any time during the war. He added that while the larger cities of Victoria and Vancouver have their full quota of teachers the difficulties lie in the rural areas where salaries are lower.

In Prince Albert, Sask., about 25 percent of the vacancies will remain unfilled. Reasons for the continued dearth are varied. Many of the married women have returned to their homes to look after their families and no longer wish to continue teaching.

G. D. Eamer, president of the Saskatchewan Teachers' federation said the "exodus of Saskatchewan teachers to more remunerative occupations outside the province is responsible for the shortage in that area."

In Ontario education department officials report the teaching situation has improved.

Lack of American Teamwork Leads to Mix-Up in Germany

WASHINGTON, (ONA)—Russians being encouraged in the United States and British zones of occupation in Germany are causing embarrassment in official Washington circles because the charges seem to gain weight from an apparent disparity between the state department and the American military government, on the one hand, and the army on the other, in the exercise of authority over German affairs.

It is known for example that John H. Hilldring, assistant secretary of state in charge of occupied areas has no prior knowledge of the army's decision in Germany a week ago to release many imprisoned Nazis. It is believed that Hilldring had known of the decision beforehand he would have disapproved it.

It has likewise been noted here that the arrests of Communist leaders in Bavaria, including one cabinet minister, on July 22 were undertaken by the army without knowledge of A.M.G. officials. The department of Justice, Bavarian minister of the interior, was notified of the arrests only after they had been made. This action is in sharp contrast to the army's failure to curb certain rabidly anti-Soviet forces and organizations which, in such situations, are certainly dangerous to amicable relations in Germany.

For instance, a state department, it is asserted, has information on such organizations as the Ukrainian Centre which has headquarters in Augsburg and branches throughout the American zone. Record Not Clear.

About the newspaper Nache Zhitsya published by the Ukrainian Emigrants publishes 11 newspapers in the American zone. Similar organizations are in the Ukrainian zone in Hanover and the Society of the Letts in Grewen. Communists have been a strong anti-Nazi force in Germany, it is pointed out, while these other groups do not have such a clear record.

Information on the leaders of these organizations shows that they are either Russian emigrants from 1918 to 1921 or have been in the records involving service with the German army on the Russian front in the recent war. U.S. intelligence officers have documents linking many Ukrainian leaders with the gettagap and Germanist groups in Germany under suspicion of planning to wreck trains in the United States and Canada during the war.

Although some State Department officials believe that such groups as these should be controlled or, in some cases, disbanded army officials seem to have the power to block action.

British Set Sales Records Winning Battle of Export

LONDON, (CP) — Britain is winning the battle of export. That is indisputably the most important development here and it is giving the people a new carry on, despite the fact that each day seems to tighten the austerity screws.

Labor party speakers at three recent by-elections stressed that in May this country exported 15 per cent more value than in May 1938, the last full year of peace. The export figure fell off in June due to four days of public holidays, but even so records were set in overseas sales of British automobiles, radio-sets, aircraft, clothes and footwear.

Gain in Car Exports
Automobiles last month were flooding out British ports at an average rate of 240 a day compared with 210 a day in May and 180 in April. During the month, the Thames through the great commercial-dock area, in correspondence with lines of cargo-vessels outward-bound, their decks as well as their holds heaped high with wooden auto-crates.

The export of British radio-sets is far above the pre-war mark. Last month, 28,000 were exported compared with a 1938 monthly average of only 7,033. One reason for this, according to a British radio man, is that in wartime thousands of radios were built for military use, and that the British radio industry underwent a terrific physical expansion. This was perfect for peacetime trade inasmuch as the production of radios is necessary to convert to production of peace-time sets. The main difference between the war-time model is usually only the outside cabinet.

Clothing Exports
Other export figures were reported in the British press this month. More clothes were exported in any single month in the past 20 years. Three times as many dresses are being sent abroad in 1938, twice as many suits, twice as many pairs of shoes and hosiery. The biggest purchaser of shoes, incidentally, is UNRRA.

But for the time being, British consumer-produce is not reaching the British shopkeeper. I went through Harrod's, the giant London department store, the other day. The showcases had a brave display of quality goods but behind the scenes, it was shown absolutely bare shelves and empty stockrooms. Leather goods and fine-quality English chinaware were virtually non-existent although at any one of three-dozen Fifth Avenue shops today you can spend a fortune on English china and leather. The Harrod's furniture department was filled with beautiful pieces but it was told that they were all re-modelled second-hand stuff bought from private sources. There was no new furniture at all. In the men's wear department, I saw a few good tweed suits but again there was absolutely no choice. If they had your size, you were lucky. English and Scottish tweed is going abroad.

Want Foreign Exchange
The purpose is, of course, to bring in foreign exchange as quickly as possible in an attempt to rebalance Britain's unbalanced economy. And conversely, while every effort is being made to sell to the world, exports are being made to prevent all unnecessary buying. Scores like Harrod's are severely limited in the amount of money they are allowed to spend in importing goods. Any currency controls are equally strict. Private citizens take money out of the country to go abroad. When this correspondent went to Paris recently, he was permitted to take with him in English currency the equivalent of only $20.

The dark side of the export picture is coal. Emanuel Shinwell, minister of fuel and power, has disclosed a $500,000 ton shortage in production, and added that this has diminished the hope of any immediate further increase in the export figures.

The shortage of miners and the continued absenteeism are due to the unattractiveness of mining and the antiquated mining methods. Yet the whole export picture depends on the rising tide of production. Nationalization of the mines can make little difference until the mines are modernized, which may take years. Hence, the choice facing Britishers lies in an unexamined austerity this winter, and the allocation of coal for export or domestic comfort and falling exports.

Montreal to Seek Free Port Status

MONTREAL, (CP) — Civic officials said they plan to ask the Dominion government to pass legislation authorizing the establishment of a free port in Montreal. Similar free port movements already are afoot in Halifax and Quebec.

A free port is one in which merchandise of all nations may land and unload goods, unaffected by the country's customs duties, as long as the goods remain in the free port area.

U.S. Filibuster Expert 'Hurt'

When Shoe Is on Other Foot

WASHINGTON, (CP) — The house of representatives Monday saw the happy spectacle of Claghornism being hoist with its own petard. A parliamentary trick by which Southern Democrats have on several occasions blocked discussion of the extension of the Fair Employment Practices committee and other legislation designed to give the Negro a break was used by New York's Vito Marcantonio to block a resolution of the committee on the American representation of the Dies committee backed by one of the trick's originators, Rep. John Rankin of Mississippi.

The resolution asked the house to institute contempt proceedings against George Marshall, chairman of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties.

The resolution also asked the congressional representation of the American Labor party, rubbed his hands and set about a filibuster. He did it by forcing repeated roll-calls and quorum calls, each of

Australia to End Gasoline Rationing

SYDNEY, Australia, (CP) — Gasoline rationing introduced in 1940 as an emergency wartime measure is expected to end toward the close of the year.

Newspapers and motorists' organizations are demanding its immediate abolition, but the government view that, until rationing is ended, it is for some months to conserve dollar funds.

The government, however, has introduced some compensations. It has increased the ration by one-third a month, and has ended the system under which all gasoline sent to various communities was pooled and distributed to retailers as one brand. Under the increased ration, a private motorist, who motors only for pleasure, gets up to seven gallons a month, equivalent to about 100 miles of running, and the commercial motorist gets up to 16 gallons a month.

With the increased ration has come a rise in the number of cars on the road and a consequent increase in gasoline consumption.

German 'Traitor' After His Death

MEDICINE HAT, (CP) — Testimony of eight of the 17 witnesses to be called by the crown during the trial of a German prisoner of war, charged with the hanging murder of a fellow captive, Cpl. Karl Lehmann, in the Medicine Hat internment camp in September, 1943, was heard at the opening of the trial Monday.

Mueller, the fourth prisoner charged with the murder, the other three, Sgt.-Maj. Bruno Perzen-owski, Sgt.-Maj. Heinrich Busch and Sgt. Walter Wolf, were convicted and sentenced to be hanged in the Medicine Hat Jail Oct. 16.

One of the witnesses told of going into Hut 10 and seeing the body of a man lying on the floor. Although he had never taken lectures from Lehmann, he said he knew him and identified a photo as the man he had seen hanging. Lehmann's relations, prior to his death was that he was a "good sportsman" and a "good comrade."

After his death, the rumor had been that he was a "traitor," said a second unidentified witness, a member of the Luftwaffe, told defense counsel G. E. Rice. Lehmann was considered to be a "traitor."

$20,000,000 Crop Loss Estimated
Not a day too soon, the rainfall of Monday night and Tuesday day has brought relief to crops in the Edmonton district that the lack of Purple Springs, a few miles west of Burdette. The crop yield is not known but is expected to be "slightly above average."

The C.P.R. Monday reported its first deliveries of the season. The grain, weighing 63 pounds to the bushel and grading No. 1 Northern hard, came from the fields of L. K. Beck of Purple Springs, a few miles west of Burdette. The crop yield is not known but is expected to be "slightly above average."

Housing Material Situation Glum

OTTAWA, (CP) — A gloom, gloom, gloom, window glass brick—all are things you need to build a house and most of them are scarce.

Monday night in the commons, Mr. C. H. Howe, in making his amendments to the National Housing Act, through the house, was criticized about building supplies.

Here are Mr. Howe's bulletins from the material front:

Nails — A price increase was granted. But a strike in several plants has hit the industry, completely disorganized, through lack of raw materials (steel). Steel supplies of steel rods lie behind picket lines of besieged plants.

Asbestos — The government has granted double rate depreciation to encourage large investment by private company.

Plumbing supplies — Government considering making for certain equipment that will speed production.

Brick — Government lending assistance to get labor to open new yards.

Wall board — Old mill reopened after government diverted raw materials there and undertook to absorb material that could not be sold under existing ceilings.

Soil-pipe — Prices adjusted to encourage production.

Window glass — Supply short. Domestic plants closing owing to strike in soda ash industry. Imports improving.

which requires about 25 minutes. A bill to force a quorum call if there is less than a majority in the floor, Monday a majority of the house was still in town although many representatives have left for home, a jump ahead of adjournment, but most of them were far from the floor of the house.

The house had a good laugh when Rep. Rankin — one of the southerners who have used the same type of filibuster time and again against the F.E.P.C., which Marcantonio has backed — introduced after two hours of roll calls "this is nothing but a dilatory tactic."

Mr. Marcantonio was still laughing when the house adjourned.

It was purely coincidental that only 24 hours earlier Mr. Rankin's Committee on the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, a Senate for Theodore "The Nazi" Bilbo had reflected with thunderous recrimination an offer by the Kennedy DeMair, the "Evangelist of the horn" of radio mine, of a $300-a-week Hollywood job playing the role of a federal herring-trapping southern Democrat.

Congress Pay Bill Returns Control

By Jay G. Hayden

WASHINGTON, (NANA) — Although it was marred at the last by a tricky bit of personal acquisition, the La Follette-Monroe congressional reorganization bill is likely to be recorded in history as the most important legislative accomplishment of this generation.

The last-minute circumlocution related to congressional pay. The bill as originally drafted proposed an increase from $10,000 to $15,000 and the senate passed it in that form. In the house, this was changed to an increase in base pay only to $12,500, but with $1,500 added in the guise of a tax-free expense account, as to which the member has to make no detailed accounting.

The net effect of this change, which the senate promptly accepted, is to make the annual take-home pay approximately $1,000 higher than it would have been with a straight $15,000 salary, minus the expense account.

Last year the house voted the $2,500 expense allowance for its members, but the senate then rejected it as an obvious pay-raising subterfuge.

Even so, the bill should be worth the price many times over and it is a tremendous personal accomplishment for the two men who principally maneuvered it to passage. Senator M. La Follette, of Wisconsin and Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney, of Oklahoma.

The most important single effect of the bill is to return to congressional control of the nation's finances, which it has largely forfeited away. At the beginning of each session heretofore, appropriations committees, which deal out the money in the house and finance in the senate, which raise revenue, must get together on a budget and the means of meeting it.

A South African steel firm has sent a mission to America to study housing and town-planning, so they can build a town near their Pretoria steel works.

Three New Cases Of Polio Reported

Three further cases of infantile paralysis were reported last week from points outside Edmonton, but no fresh case was reported within the city limits, according to a report filed with the city commissioners Tuesday by Dr. G. M. Little, medical officer of health.

A FURTHER DRASTIC decline in the number of measles cases was reported last week compared with the week previous. During last week 34 cases came to the attention of the health department compared with 97 the week previous.

An increase of nine was recorded in the number of mumps cases with 22 reported last week compared with 13 the week previous. Only two cases of scarlet fever were reported last week and 12 of chicken pox.

The three new cases of infantile paralysis reported Tuesday by the city health department brings the year's total for the province to 19 cases. Dr. A. Somerville, provincial director of communicable diseases stated.

THE DOCTOR SAID no new cases had been reported from any rural section of the province during this week, although a total of six was reported last week.

As much as possible parents and others in charge of children should make an effort to keep them from concentrating in crowds, and should see that children have an abundance of good food, including plenty of green vegetables as well as plenty of rest.

THE POLIO INCIDENCE this year is not yet considered serious, but a watchfulness on the part of parents for any unusual symptoms in children is strongly advocated by the department of health. Any such unusual condition in a child should be reported immediately to a doctor.

Writer Draws Intimate Picture Of Peace Conference Setting

This intimate pen picture of the atmosphere in the Luxembourg palace where the peace conference is presently under way was written by one of the British United Press French service correspondents. It is a timely background story regarding the famous place—Editor.

By LEO DARVILLE

Generally, the long, quiet corridors, and impressive rooms of famous and historic Luxembourg Palace in the heart of Paris are enshrouded in a solemn hush. Today they are filled with an almost unprecedented hum of activity which it is hoped, will see formulation of peace treaties between some of the countries which fought against the Allies in World War II.

IT IS A MOST appropriate place to work on peace treaties: the whole building and its surroundings seem to symbolize peace. Through the high windows of the Senate, where the delegates of 21 nations are sitting, one can see a gracious, most typically French scene.

Between bouquets of tall trees one sees the wind-blown spray of fountains, the water of which falls back into large circular basins, wherein fleets of little ships, which belong to the children whose very future the men inside the room are deciding.

THE PALACE GARDEN breathes the calm and sweetness of life. An old balloon hawker amble around the paths like a multi-colored dot; a small cartage drawn by goats is slowly carrying along a blonde five-year-old girl. She is the same girl who is mounted on donkeys.

Perhaps the little lady is heading for the marionette theatre, which already has drawn a big, youthful audience.

A GENERATION or two older than the little girl are the tennis players who fill the air with challenge; and then not far off, there are men who went through the first great war, playing croquet. Perhaps some of them even helped draw up the Treaty of Versailles, which failed so miserably to keep the peace.

All these scenes are before the peace delegates. And, too, towers who sit on the grounds, but have to pay twenty cents for their chairs if the little old lady who is supposed to collect the money gets to them before they move away.

GENERALLY WHEN the lady comes along, the love-birds get up, very nonchalantly and dignified. Certainly, they'd like to pay; but a little later when the finances are better.

Somewhat, one can't help thinking, as one sees them move off, that they certainly will live up to their obligation to pay the twenty centimes. But it's hard to pay now. Perhaps, tomorrow. Whenever a thorny problem comes up, one seems to project its solution to the future, tomorrow. May the conference delegates be a little less human in this regard.

Inside the palace the rooms and corridors are lined with expensive Gobelins and marble busts of dead senators, most of whom have been forgotten. The floors are covered with thick carpet.

AND IN THE QUIETUDE one thinks of the forgotten men and the crowned heads of Europe who have gone since the first World War.

There is Victor Emmanuel III and Humberto, of Italy; Leopold of Belgium; Zog of Albania; George of Greece; Carol of Roumania; Peter of Yugoslavia; Ferdinand of Bulgaria. All are in exile.

As one old French diplomat said today, "Most of them are either forgotten already or dishonored."

How many thrones in Europe have been left in my lifetime? Those of England and Holland and Norway and Sweden, of Denmark and Romania, but then of course, you know that the Count of Paris, Don Juan of Spain, Otto of Hapsburg, and even Crown Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria still have hopes that one day they will again play a role on this international chess board. Adding to the hum emanating from the telephone booths are loudspeakers installed everywhere, so that people can hear, even outside the meeting hall, the activities at the semi-circle of Senate seats accommodating 314 delegates and their aides.

THE MEN, AS THE OLD diplomat said, are "re-marking the map of the world. It's a rather fragile structure, this world map. Our era is one of great changes."

Naming of all these former national heads and their different countries leads one to walk over to the huge room which has been turned into a radio center. It is a notable Tower of Babel.

The radio men are sending out commentaries of most contradictory nature and in the most diverse tongues. The harsh tones of the man speaking in clipped Hungarian are followed at the microphones by the almost plaintive high-pitched sing-song of the Chinese. And the latter leaves the cafeteria where, for only 130 francs (one dollar) one can buy ample meals.

FROM THE RADIO ROOM one wanders over to the magnificent apartment of the Senate president which have been turned into a cafeteria where, for only 130 francs (one dollar) one can buy ample meals.

Just before or after lunch, one can see Mr. Byrnes or Mr. Molotov walk into the former bedroom on Marie De Medicis, where a news stand has been installed. Cigarettes and tobacco purchasers go through another door into the glided boudoir of the same queen, whose memory is hardly real to those who ask for

"Virginias" or "Turks". And in the corridors are lines of telephone booths—48 of them to be exact. Adding to the hum emanating from the telephone booths are loudspeakers installed everywhere, so that people can hear, even outside the meeting hall, the activities at the semi-circle of Senate seats accommodating 314 delegates and their aides.

South Africa Party Sees City from Air

Members of the party of South African railway executives who visited Edmonton Monday viewed the city and surrounding territory from a CPA plane, and expressed their delight at the treat provided them by the air line.

Mayor Harry Ainlay and City Engineer A. W. Haddock accompanied them on the tour which extended over the Namoo airport, and flights over several of the towns adjacent to the city. The CPA placed one of the large ships at the disposal of the party, the flight occupying approximately 60 minutes. Members of the party said Edmonton was the first city to extend such a treat to them.

Trousseau Tea For Bride-to-Be

Entertaining in compliment to her daughter, Miss Margaret Collinson, whose marriage to Mr. George Robertson takes place this week, Mrs. James T. J. Collinson held a trousseau tea at her home on Connaught Drive Saturday. About 100 guests dined during the afternoon.

Bouquets of summer flowers decorated the room for the reception. Receiving Mrs. Collinson were a printed silk afternoon dress, accessories to tone and a shoulder corsage of carnations. Miss Collinson chose a grey silk afternoon dress with a corsage of red roses and freesias. Mrs. Chester Robertson, mother of the bridegroom-to-be, wore a rose printed silk dress, a flowered hat and a corsage of Tallinn roses and blue cornflowers.

Tea was served from a table laid in ecru lace with a floral centrepiece of gladioli, carnations and

Mrs. A. E. Flood, ushered the guests into the dining room. Servants were Mrs. Fred Way, Mrs. J. Whelan, Mrs. A. P. Martin, Miss Myra MacCallum, Miss Constance O'Brien, Miss Marilyn Casey, Miss Bernadette McCann, Miss Grace Palmer and Miss Stephanie MacDonald.

Mrs. Hugh Collinson of Minneapolis, sister-in-law of the bride-elect, and Mrs. J. W. Heffernan showed the wedding gifts.

Sight Restored By Cornea Graft

ADELALDE, Australia, (CP)—Mrs. Katherine Raynor, 50, of Melbourne, has just seen her daughter Patricia, who is leaving for Canada soon to marry, for the first time in seven years.

Mrs. Raynor lost her sight in 1928. A tennis ball damaged the cornea of her right eye, and two months later she ran a stick into her left eye, which had to be removed.

She twice had corneas grafted on the right eye, but each time the operation was unsuccessful. Surgeons feared that the donor of a cornea must be of a blood group compatible with the person who receives it.

Then a woman was admitted to Adelaide hospital for the removal of an eye. She was the same blood group as Mrs. Raynor, and donated the cornea to her. Surgeons again operated on Mrs. Raynor, and the operation was successful.

Principals in Wedding Ceremony Here

CALGARY. — Scarboro United church was the scene of an attractive candle-lit wedding ceremony recently when Miss Ruth Doreen Williams, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Williams of Ponoka, became the bride of Mr. William Edgar Downey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Downey of Alliston, Ont. Rev. S. J. B. Parsons performed the ceremony, for which the church was decorated with fern and Peasblossoms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white sheer trimmed with satin applique. A white sash, Mary Queen of Scots headpiece held her full-length veil in place and she carried a bouquet of deep pink roses and gardenias.

Mr. R. I. Keen and Miss Evelyn McAllister attended the bride. The former was frocked in a floor-length gown of coral net and Miss McAllister chose a toe-length model of blue net. They carried bouquets of kokono, carnations and blue cornflowers and wore floral head-dresses of matching flower.

Mr. B. L. Berlin was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Carson and Mr. Roy Stenlund. During the signing of the register, Miss Doris Fish sang "Because."

A reception was held in the west room of the Palliser hotel, a tiered wedding cake and tall white tapers lighted the bride's table.

The bride's uncle, Mr. C. A. Richardson, proposed the bridal toast.

After a honeymoon in Banff and Louise, Mr. and Mrs. Downey will reside in Calgary. For travelling the bride donned a three-piece red suit with black and white accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Career as Tailor is Goal Of Former Air Force Girl

MONTREAL, (CP)—With four years tailoring experience in the women's division of the R.C.A.F. behind her, Mrs. J. W. Colville of Montreal, is ready to continue her trade of tailoring in civilian life after her recent honeymoon.

Born Lela Leja 25 years ago, Mrs. Colville spent most of her childhood in Prince Albert, Sask. Of Australian parentage, she broke into the tailoring business doing piece work for a large firm in Chicago.

She returned to Canada to join the W.D. and as one of the approximately 30 experienced tailors in the service, did such jobs as fitting and altering half finished uniforms issued to women recruits and issuing and adjusting new uniforms for airmen returning from overseas.

Chief Officer Betty Samuel made a speech wishing luck to those remaining here, and expressing appreciation of the hospitality that Mrs. Colville had received here. She said that many of the girls who will settle here were attracted by freedom, the climate and the number of good jobs available.

Smart Fashions Shown on Rand

JOHANNESBURG, (CP)—The progress of the South African clothing industry was illustrated in Johannesburg recently in a "Fashion Show" of South African creation.

The mayor of Johannesburg, Mrs. J. McPherson, who was present at the fashion parade, said: "South African women still have the idea that local production is not so good as that imported from overseas. Perhaps they now will change their ideas."

The designers and the skilled labor were trained in South Africa. Among the hundreds of frocks the smartness and simplicity of tailoring day frocks were noticeable together with the use of sequin and "riche" trimming, below-elbow black gloves worn with many afternoon gowns, dinner frocks slit to the knees in the front and evening frocks with graceful head draperies.

Many of the hats were the "crown" type, some of the taller, added a foot and a half to the wearer's height. Practical as the frocks were with tulle, either floating above the hat or tied coyly beneath the wearer's chin.

Designer Inspired By African Scenes

JOHANNESBURG, (CP)—The grace of the silver tree, the dignity of the protea, the richness of the Cape Peninsula have been the inspiration of the dress designer, Yvonne Evangelidis, of Athens.

Inspired by shapes and coloring, Evangelidis, who came to South Africa with the Greek royal family, has designed his own materials and made some lovely clothes.

Victor Day last year stirred Evangelidis' imagination. He created a special Victory gown, the material patterned with Spring-box, native huts and trees. His gowns have been shown in Cape Town and Johannesburg. From here they will be taken to New York.

Evangelidis is of the opinion that South Africa is a country that is "coming on top." South African goods are well known for the day time and for sport, but that grace and glamor are lacking at night.

Dorothy Langner Is Married In Early Evening Ceremony

Bouquets of peonies and summer blossoms formed an attractive setting in St. Athanasia Baptist church Saturday for the marriage of Miss Dorothy Jean Langner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Langner, of Edmonton, to Mr. Henry Eldon Root, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Root, of Washington D.C. Rev. J. MacRae performed the 7:30 p.m. ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a slipper-length gown fashioned with a fitted satin bodice and a bouffant net skirt. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a tiara of white beaded satin and she wore white elbow-length mittens. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Eleanor Langner, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Doris Day was bridesmaid. They wore gowns of identical style in contrasting shades of primrose and lavender. Corsage of summer flowers held their veils in place and they each carried a colonial bount.

Best man was Mr. Melvin Langner, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Mr. Arthur Briskman, Mr. Ted Langner, and Mr. Jack Morrow. Mrs. T. Hewitt played the wedding music and Miss Claire Hollingsworth sang "Because."

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Langner wore a beige after noon dress with fuchsia pattern and contrasting brown accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where the bride's table was centered with white pillar Sweetheart roses. A three-tiered wedding cake was flanked by tapers.

After a honeymoon trip to Jasper, Mr. and Mrs. Root will reside in Washington. For travelling the bride wore a dove gray sabatard dressmaker suit with black accessories to contrast.

Sightless Girl In Crack Bowler

REGINA, (CP)—The girl who played Chopin at a recent recital also wins prizes in knitting and bowling when she takes time out from running her soft drink stand at the city hall—she exceeds wherever it's "touch" that counts.

Blind Myrtle Stevens of Regina has had very faint vision in only one eye since birth but next year she expects to secure her A.T.C.M. sailing music and needlework certificate.

Her ambition to become a chiropractor was interrupted by her vision after eight months' study at Davenport, Iowa, but she intends to finish the course. She became interested in the course while receiving treatment for her vision and discovered that it was "touch" that counted in that field.

Stettler Couple Wed in Calgary

CALGARY. — In an evening ceremony held at St. Paul's United church here recently, Rev. Dwight Powell united in marriage Miss Isabelle Ellen Rowledge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rowledge, of Stettler, and Mr. William Albert Savage, son of Mrs. J. Savage, also of Stettler.

The bride chose a dress of Alente blue sheer with a finger-tip length veil held in place with cluster of red roses. She carried a bouquet of matching flowers. Mr. Ernest Rowledge gave his sister in marriage.

Matron of honor was the bride's cousin, a gown of black, pink sheer and sister, Mrs. H. Timms. She wore carried deep pink carnations.

Mr. Savage was best man. The wedding music was played by Miss Joyce Bisset.

A reception was held in the Spanish room of the Palliser hotel, where the toast to the bride and groom was proposed by Rev. Mr. Powell. The bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake and decorated with vases of pastel-toned carnations.

The couple left on a wedding trip in a gold suit with black plastic accessories. They will make their home at Vancouver, the bride travelling home at Powell River, B.C.

Mrs. Beckman Gives Advice On Wedding Anniversaries

Dear Mrs. Beckman: I and I have been invited to a reception a friend is giving in honor of the 25th wedding anniversary of her parents. Since the parents are not close friends of ours, what would be a proper gift to send them in recognition of this occasion? My husband feels that it should be a gift in which while I think that flowers might be suitable, but I am not sure if the gift or flowers should be sent before the reception... or am I wrong?

2. The reception hours are from 4:30 to 6:00 p.m. Does this mean that guests are given the privilege of arriving and leaving during that specified time?

3. And what would be the proper length of our call?

B.E.

1. Since you and your husband are not close friends of the guests you honor, it would be expected that you send a consequential gift to them, and I agree with you that flowers would be an appropriate gesture for you to make. Your flowers should be sent to arrive on the morning of the reception, so that they can be planned as a festive part of the reception ground. Since your invitation was by courtesy of your friend, perhaps you and your husband might like to send her a corsage. And of course it is quite proper for you to send the anniversary couple some simple gift for their home... it need not be a gift of silver.

2. Yes.

3. You might stay about a half hour, or longer if you wish.

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

1. My second cousin and her husband are planning to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary soon. They are in their thirties and I am wondering what I could give them for a wedding anniversary gift. I am a widow, older than they

Avis Eaton Becomes Bride Of Mr. John Moffatt, Monday

Central United church was the scene of a double-ring wedding ceremony July 29 at 7:30 p.m. when Miss Avis Martha Eaton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eaton of Edmonton, became the bride of Mr. John Leslie Moffatt, a former resident of Edmonton. The bride was escorted by Mr. W. J. Moffatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Moffatt, also of Edmonton. Rev. O. Gypis performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with flowers. The bride wore a white dress with a full skirt and a fitted bodice. The groom wore a dark suit. The wedding was attended by many guests.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a slipper-length white dress styled with a skirt of double net over tulle and a fitted bodice. Her long white veil was held in place with a beaded coronet and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls belonging to her grandmother.

Miss Mary Rowland, bridesmaid, wore the bride's only attendant. She wore a frock of pink organza accented with lace and a low ruffled neckline. A pink chapel veil and long pink mittens complemented her frock and she carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

The groom was P. G. Edward Willis, R.C.N.V.R., and ushers were Mr. Herbert Moffatt and Mr. William Eaton. Mrs. Eaton chose for her daughter's wedding, a royal purple crepe dress, black accessories and a corsage of Tallman roses. Mrs. Moffatt, mother of the bridegroom, wore a black dress, black accessories and a deep red rose corsage.

After the ceremony, the bride and groom were seated at a table with a white tablecloth. The bride wore a white dress with a full skirt and a fitted bodice. The groom wore a dark suit. The wedding was attended by many guests.

Later the couple left for a honeymoon at Sylvan Lake, the bride travelling in a motor car with white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Moffatt will reside in Calgary, where the bridegroom is taking a five month course in industrial arts.

Wolfs Whistles 'Cowardly, Moronic'

CAMP KILMER, N. J. (AP)—Whistling at women is "low, cheap, cowardly and moronic," says Chaplain Albinus R. Lench. In the Kilmer Eagle camp newspaper, he said today that such a method to "reel" a woman "is an attempt to reduce the grandeur and nobility of woman-kind to the level of the female animal."

"It is a cowardly act," he continued, "because the whistler openly discards his role as protector of women and deliberately takes advantage of his superior strength."

Household Hint
When children's shoes are taken, great care must be taken that they are not put under or under the shoe changer. Watch to see that the wear comes evenly on the sole. A child who wears his shoes down very unevenly, should have his feet examined by a doctor.

Upswelt Hair-Do's Men's Latest Gripe

WINNIPEG (CP)—It's all in the way you look at things. The men like an upswell because it's the easiest and coolest collar in warm weather. But the men, who don't seem to care about a girl's comfort, view the top-knots and masses of curls with great distaste.

Not only do they view it with distaste, but they're downright insulting about it. "It makes them look like turkeys," many girls put their hair up — it saves the bother of setting it. But there is one cautious soul. He let the whole thing go with "my wife wears her hair up."

Goering Faces Hangman's Noose But He Bears Up Best at Trials

Lyle C. Wilson, manager of the Washington Bureau of the British United Press, has just returned to tell them about the trial of the big-shot Nazis at Nuremberg than about any other phase of the trip.

"Hermann Goering doesn't look like such a slick article now, eh?"

The prisoners have to sit so close together they can scarcely squirm. This appears to make them hate each other, and just the other day Jodl, the spit and polish Prussian general, let out a yelp of protest. He told the court he should not be compelled to sit in the company of the foul individuals with whom he is indicted.

Only Goering appears to be enjoying the proceedings. Occasionally he dominates the big, rectangular court room. Show off that he is, big Hermann loves it. He knows he is to be hanged and he apparently doesn't give a damn. Whatever else may be said of Goering, he does not appear to be a coward.

GOERING HAS THE NO. 1 or pole position in the prisoners' box. You enter the big room from the side and step immediately into another world. On your left are the prisoners, their two rows of half-enclosed seats parallel to the wall. Immediately in front of them at long tables are the German attorneys. Still farther across the room are court recorders and secretaries of the court.

Just beyond them, well raised above all others, is the high bench of international military justice. There sit two representatives of each of the accusing powers—the Soviet Union, Great Britain, France and the United States. Prosecutors at long tables widely spaced across the breadth of the room. In front of them is the trial scene. Behind them are the tiers of comfortable theatre seats from which guests view the proceedings, like watching animals at the zoo, only more comfortable. At the other end of the room, beyond the accused and the judges are the translators, the marshal of the court, the witness box and the movie screen.

LIGHTS ARE DOUSED from time to time and the accused are shown some of the dirty things they accomplished. Some close their eyes or look away from the movie horrors of the Belsen and Dachau murder camps.

I visited a trial on off-days for everyone but the Germans and the Russians. They were wrangling over who killed the 10,000 or 15,000 Poles discovered mass-buried in the spring of 1943 deep in the Katyn forest. Both the Germans and the Russians have been kicking Poles around for some hundreds of years. The Germans say the Russians killed them. The Russians say the Germans killed them.

So a rumpus German Field Marshal was the first witness. He commanded the Nazi infantry division which "discovered" the bodies. The Russians claim his division killed the Poles.

"NEIN, NEIN, NEIN," said the German general in several thousand words.

Next was an equally rumpus Polish professor. He was a Russian witness and was positive the murderers were German.

Goering grimaced through the dull day. From time to time he would scribble and hand a suggestion to the German attorneys nearest him. It was old stuff, the attorneys and they stuffed the notes in their pockets without much regard for fat Hermann's feelings.

Next to Goering sat Rudolf Hess.

HERMANN GOERING

— wan and blank-faced character. Hess stares straight ahead. Ribbentrop, the champagne salesman turned diplomat, is next in the front row. Whatever dignity or bearing he may have had is gone. The dapper Ribbentrop is an old man, dull faced and apprehensive.

KEITEL, Kaltenbrunner, Rosenberg, Frank, Frick, Streicher, Funk and the pious Schacht complete the front row. Behind them, all Doenitz, the infamous admiral, Raeder, also a beaten Nazi naval man, Sauckel, Goebbels, Von Papen, Seyss-Inquart, Speer, Neurath, and Fritzsche.

They are neither pretty nor impressive. Little Frank blinks behind dark glasses. If he escapes the noose here, Poland is waiting for him. He was once the governor-general of Nazi Poland. Frick might as well be hanged now, too, and get it over with. Norway and Czechoslovakia want him. Seyss-Inquart is another whose tale is just about told. He bossed Holland during the war.

ALL LISTEN INTENTLY. Four interpreters are always on duty. Each question, each answer instantly is translated into Russian, French, German and English. Every seat in the courtroom has its headphones. Each head is equipped with a four-way dial. Turn the switch and you get it in the language most convenient to you.

Now the trial which began Nov. 20, 1945, is almost over. Six weeks from now we should know who is to die and who is to live.

Northern Trapper Sees First Talkie

PORT ST. JOHN, B. C. July 31.—Fred Berg, trapper of Lower Post, saw his first talking picture last week. He bought himself several beers in the first beer parlor he had ever seen. And he went back to see "Porky" on the Yukon border, several days later figuring that it was the best thing he had seen here in St. John. He hadn't missed much in the last 25 years.

It's been 25 years since Fred has been "outside." In 1921, he came to Lower Post over the old Telegraph Trail from Hazelton with horses. He stayed and trapped and prospered, and has never left the trapping post in all those years.

Last week he satisfied a yen that, lately, has been creeping up on him. And when Hennie McLeod, trucker, was on his way back from Mike Nolan's lodge near Whitehorse, Y.T., where he delivered a bunch of horses for Lynch Cullison, Berg climbed in the cab of the big truck and hit the trail south, 600 miles. St. John was enough for Berg, however. He didn't evince further interest in Dawson Creek. After five or six days of hectic pace, at this Alaska way house, Berg was glad to return to his quiet cabin on the Liard river about another north-bound truck.

In ancient China, when a guest entered a home he was given a leather glove as a symbol of welcome.

Enemy Equipment Shown in Alberta

A collection of captured German and Italian equipment contributed to The Royal Edmonton Regiment (Reserve) by returning veterans is raising considerable interest in the course of its tour to Northern Alberta points.

Nazi Women Knew Of Horror Camps

By ROBERT RICHARDS NEW YORK, July 31 (BUP)—

The women of Weimar, on the road to Buchenwald in Germany, were lovely — but they were liars. They stood in the shade, beneath the neatly pruned trees. It has been well over a year now, but still I remember. They stared at the tanks of the Sixth Armored Division. They looked at the jeeps, and they laughed.

"THAT?" THEY ASKED, pointing down the road where barred wire hid the concentration camp's horror. "Oh, we knew nothing of that. Oh, we are sorry."

"But they knew everything," Kurt Maier said today, 10 days ago he was still in Europe. "I tell you, they knew it all."

Maier is thin and nervous now. He is a professional pianist — and hopes perhaps to work at his trade in the United States.

"But not with the accordion," he said. "God, I wouldn't play the accordion."

YOU SEE, THE SS guards discovered that Maier was a musician.

"Good," they said. "We like our tunes. Kurt, Good, you must play."

They gave him an accordion. They put him in a room where a guard stood with a whip. The guard said, "Watch me, Kurt. When I snore, you will see the devil."

Then another prisoner was shoved into the room. "Play," screamed the guard. And Kurt Maier played. He played while the whip rose and fell, rose and fell. Finally Kurt collapsed, crying out, "No, I cannot stand it."

THEY BEAT HIM THEN. They left him with red scars across his chest. "See," Kurt said, "I have opened his shirt to prove it."

There was a guard named Brown — he had an American father.

"Come to my quarters," he ordered. "Play for me."

So Kurt Maier went and played good American tunes. The Nazi smiled and listened to "Home on the Range," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," or to "Melancholy Baby."

"Don't you tell anyone about this," he said — forcing Maier to play for hours.

Kurt, who wished to live, never told. But he hated that accordion, so lovely — but they were liars. Just the same he hated it.

"SOMETIMES THE commandant walked through our camp with his five-year-old son," Kurt said. "This man — his name was Koch — would point to a prisoner and say, 'Well, and what shall I do to him?'"

"The boy would reply, 'Shoot him father.' This Koch pulled his pistol and it was done."

Maier can't believe that he is safe in Manhattan now, living with Mr. and Mrs. Karl Koyter. His sister and brother-in-law. It seems like a dream to the Czech.

"But the ordinary people," I asked. "The women of Weimar — are you sure that they knew?"

Kurt Maier smiled. "It was early in the morning when we walked through Weimar on the way to Buchenwald," he said. "We had come more than 80 kilometers and we were tired."

A GERMAN WOMAN, one of the housewives of Weimar, came to her door. She stared out at the marching columns.

"She called to our guard," Kurt said. "I can still hear the noise of her voice. She shouted, 'Why waste so much time, soldier? Shoot the Jews. Then come inside — I have coffee ready.'"

Kurt Maier shook his head. "I assure you — the women knew."

Unusual Mishap

A city woman suffered an unusual accident Monday afternoon when she stepped on a cherry stone and fell while shopping in a department store. The woman was taken to hospital in Jack Hays' ambulance and is said to have suffered a fractured hip.
